

David Whitehead

Professional Learning Leader

David worked in primary education for two decades before joining Corwin, with experience working in public and private schools in Australia, England and Germany. He has also represented the International Baccalaureate as a workshop leader and school visitor across the Asia-Pacific region.

David believes an educator is a privilege as well as great fun. He is interested in how academic research can effectively translate into student progress and achievement.