

David Whitehead

Professional Learning Leader

Before joining Corwin David worked as a primary and middle school educator for two decades and brings experience in public, independent and International schools in Australia and Europe. He has also represented the International Baccalaureate Asia Pacific as a workshop leader and school visitor in Japan, China, Singapore and Australia, and supported teachers online throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

Since joining Corwin, David has been supporting leadership groups and teachers across Australia to review and improve systems, processes, priorities and practices to increase student progress and outcomes. He is deeply interested in supporting schools to effectively translate research into practices which lead to greater teacher collaboration, improved school culture, and which develop independent, capable and successful learners.