

Lyn Cooze

Director, Professional Learning

Strengthening the professional knowledge and practices of educators to ensure young people thrive is at the heart of Lyn's commitment to education.

Lyn strives to ensure there is consistently high-quality professional learning for educators, such that it has the power to shift attitudes, behaviours, relationships and every day interactions of leaders, teachers and students. Her professional learning knowledge and skills are fueled by her experiences as a teacher, coach, school leader, system leader, curriculum developer, instructional designer, online course developer, mathematics consultant and parent. One of her greatest strengths is translating research and theory into practical application and classroom readiness.

As a teacher and leader Lyn has experience in remote, rural, regional, urban and international schools and she brings these experiences, as well as growing up in remote South Australia, to her professional life.

Lyn seeks and supports collaboration with other educators to ensure impact on all students' learning.
