

Maria Tsavaris

Professional Learning Leader

Maria Tsavaris brings both passion and expertise to her current role as a Professional Learning Leader, Corwin Australia. She works closely with schools across Asia Pacific to support the practical implementation of the Visible Learning research, drawing on her extensive experience as a school leader, educator and previous roles outside of the education field, including the social welfare and human resource sectors.

Maria is committed to supporting educators in building their self and collective efficacy, making connections between educator practice and research and how educators think and act impacts student learning, which is our ultimate goal.
