

Sue Richards
Professional Learning Consultant

Sue has extensive national and international experience in professional learning for both teachers and leaders. She is an education consultant, a lecturer in postgraduate teacher education and holds the role of International Baccalaureate Educator Certificates Representative for the Asia Pacific region. Her research interests include technology and learning, international teacher education and school leadership. She has held global roles leading the design and development of professional learning in the US and Singapore. She has held a number of school leadership roles, contributed to school boards and been a curriculum advisor for independent and state school systems in Australia and in the area of senior secondary assessment and tertiary accreditation of SACE courses.